With great respect, lived in our day than is Andrew Johnson. And so far his party reward has been the recompense that awaits all public men who have the courage to stand and put position and power in the way of a passionate and revolutionary party before its force is spent, Against the absolute power of a resistless party President Johnson has only opposed his powerless opinions and unanswerable arguments; unanswerable so far as these arguments are based on the Constitution of the United States, which, as its sworn Chief Magistrate, he was bound to respect. The other view of the subject, "outside of the Constitution," which the late Mr. Stevens thought justified by the necessity of the case, it of a united people, acting under a written Constitution, to entertain in time of peace, and when the sections of both of which he is the solemn guardian, were appealing for health and restoration. And for blunt, resolute, fearless way, history will honor him long before those who have so do him justice.

A NOBLE SENTIMENT.

The following heautiful sentiment, uttered by Gov. Seymour, at Columbus Ohio, is worthy a place in every heart throughout the land. It contains the true spirit of Christian charity and fergive-

"The war is over and the dead are buried, the God of nature has covered their graves with green grass and beautiful flowers to show us nature left no trace of violence. Poor fallen nature should imitate this Divine example and wipe out the traces of passion and hate in the minds of the American people." The centrary is the policy pursued in Tennessee by the Radicals. They have done about all they could to excite the had passions and bring on a collision But for this course of the Radicals in this State we would have been one people.

FLORIDA was a model of a reconstructed State. There were no "Rebels' or "Ku-Klux Democrats" to interfere with the working of this loyal State government, and so it was carried on for the benefit of the carpet-baggers and scalawags, until they quarreled among themselves. As the thing new stands it is uncertain in whom the authority of the State islodged. The Legislature has impeached the Governor, and deposed him so far as the action of that body is concerned, but he refuses to give up the office. The Supreme Court has been appealed to to decide who is "the State," and in the mean time the trouble continues. It must be confessed by Radicals that reconstruction | the Presidency." in Florida is a failure.

THE Democrats are generally demanding the repeal of the laws which were passed by the Radical Congress stripping the President of all power to act independent of that body. The Washington correspondent of the New York Triforme says: " It is said that certain Democratic members intend to introduce a bill for the restoration of the full privileges of the Presidency to Gen. Grant, and it is believed that the Republicans will anticipate them, and that an act will pass in December, to take effect from and after the fourth of March, which will give the new President the full privileges of his office."

THE Washington correspondent of the New York Tribune says a prominent member of Congress who attended the session on the 10th inst. has already prepared an amendment to the Constitution regulating suffrage throughout the United States, which he will introduce on the first day of the December session. There seems little doubt that this amendment will be adopted by Congress, the States are Republican, it is thought there will be no difficulty in securing the catilitiestion of such an amendment.

GEN. GRANT AS PRESIDENT. There is naturally a great deal of curiosity to know how General Grant will act as President, and every utterance by him or any of his prominent and steadlast supporters is caught up as perhaps furnishing an index to the policy the new President will pursue. In times like the present, it is impossible, or at least eminently improper, to lay down a policy to be adhered to, right or wrong, through an administration of four years. New political issues, not foreseen, are constantly arising; the views of the public on as he understood it, to entertaining the dogma—to which point Congress forced him—of a dismembered Union, of the belieft free to EXECUTE THE WILL OF THE Northern part of which he, who swore PEOPLE. Washington, D. C., May 29, 1868. It will be observed that while he endorses the resolutions of the convention that nominated him, he expressly refuses "to lay down a policy to be adhered to, right or wrong," during his administration, but lays a great deal of stress upon people." These are the pledges from which the defeated have drawn a consolation that has enabled them to accept the election of Gen. Grant in a spirit that has surprised his warmest and most enwas impossible for the Chief Magistrate | thusiastic supporters. They have trusted the word of a soldier, and believe that he will be as unacceptable to the Radicals a year hence as President Johnson is today. The Army and Navy Journal, this discharge of his duty, in his own which has through the campaign spoken dency at the hands of the Republican Grocer and Commission in relation to Grant in an authoritative wantonly misjadged and persecuted him tone, discusses his probable course now have reached that sober second thought, that he is elected to the Presidency. Such will be appear as Presilent, and those who contemplate his being either a tool or a tyrant reckon without their host. Next we may count on Gen. Grant's administration being of an exceedingly practical character. This is an essential character of his own mind. * Gen. Grant, without making a great noise about it, will aim to make his administration generally useful by economy, by honesty, by sound judgment and common sense. "His Cabinet will be selected with a view o render him assistance in this practical way. The measures he will recommend to Congress will be entirely of this sort. The finances and the civil service will be among the foremost of general political subjects to receive attention, and we may safely predict that the great work of the hour, the great feature to strike all observers, as soon as General Grant has been a month n power, will be the confidence imprired people of all parties and all political "Grant, as a soldier, understands well the bounds of co-ordinate and subordinate authority. Congress will not be suffered to encroach upon his prerogatives as the Executive, nor he attempt to encroach upon Congress as the legislative department of the government. A soldier is used both to command and to obey—an admirable training, say what civilians will, for any administrative office, from poundkeeper up to President. We shall make bold to predict that he will realize more, than any man who has sat in the Chief Magistrate's chair since Andrew Jackson, the Executive idea which should be the central idea connected with

If General Grant will realize this idea, if he will assert the functions of the Executive officer so as to see that the laws are faithfully executed by subordinates, he will fulfill a great task. In no country in the world are officials so corrupt, so disproportionately paid for services, and so lax in the fulfillment of duties. If Gen. Grant's military education will en able him to hold his subordinates to duty and strict accountability, he will render a memorable service to the American people. The incoming of the new administration is the time to set about this great reform, and to put a stop to abuses that have for years been culminating till they have at least reached a height (10 TO THO LUMBER YARD OF that overshadows the land. U. S. GRANT, Lieut. General.

General R. E. LEE. We are not left to conjecture why hese liberal terms were accorded. We are not certain that General Grant himself has not admitted that his object was to remove every inducement to a guer-rilla warfare. His friends have frequently confessed that such was his motive, and we copied an article last week from the New York Times to this effect and expressly conceding that it was a wise stroke of policy as well as a grand act of magnanimity. General Grant peace; that Southern men, with arms n their hands, never would have surrendered them on the condition that they were to exchange position with their Quibbles may be raised about a military capitulation embracing political rights, &c. He has testified to our faithful observance of the condition im posed; he is now in a position to exact a ke compliance on the other side.

That we do not pervert the meaning of the capitulation, we subjoin the views of the French Courrier des Etats, whose editor being a foreigner and unbiased by our domestic factions, may be supposed to speak in the impartial tone of posterity. We give as accurate a translation as we can: "The charge of inconsistency and moral weakness is imputed to General Grant, based on his acceptance even of the Presiparty. What, in fact, is the act by which the policy of that party is especially characterized? The despotic laws of reconrefers to his candid and dispassionate a tyrannical yoke, which treat them as subjugated enemies, which four years after treaty of pacification." Gen. Grant may have considered that heretefore it was only his duty to guard the capitulation in its purely military bearing, as he did when he protected Gen. Leefrom the loyal fury of Mr. Johnson; now his role is enlarged, and the whole subject falls within his purview. We conceive there is no want of respect to Gen. Grant in thus frankly expressing our sense, and that of all Confederates, as to the re-ponsibility resting on him as a soldier and a gentleman, in this regard, He has only to recur to the sweeping and omprehensive words of the terms of surender-"not to be disturbed by the nited States authority." The undersigned takes pleasure in announcing to the public that he has received another shipment of the Haines Brothers Pianos, among which is the "Parlor Beauty." Small sized Rosewood case, full 7 octaves, round corners and carves less. This instrument, for its fine qualities of tone touch and mechanism, attract alike the artist and amatuer. The low prise at which they are offered, place them within the reach of every one, hence they are destined to be the great favorite of the public. My stock of Steinway, Danham, Weber and Kraushaar Pianose is large and varied, and are offered at factory prices.

In Organs and Melodens, I deal in the Burdels only, which stand before the public without a rival.
